

Making a Complaint About Maternity Care

Western Australian health services and complaint contacts

Women have the right to provide feedback or make a complaint about any aspect of their maternity care, including concerns about safety, communication, informed consent, dignity, respect or how decisions were made. Raising a concern should not negatively affect current or future care. Health services should provide accessible complaint pathways and use consumer feedback to improve safety and quality.

Maternity Consumer Network gratefully acknowledges Squire Patton Boggs for its contribution to compiling these contact lists.
